A Voter's Code of Fair Return

By E. L. BULLEN, National City.

The following platform, or code of fair return, has been compiled from the answers of many people to many questions on public affairs. Candidates for public office in San Diego county are invited to subscribe to it and pledge unqualified support.

A change in the management of state and county affairs must be made and enforced to protect the mass of the common people. Every known reform in government was first branded as radical. The following suggestions are submitted in spite of that risk, viz.:

1. A public office is not, in itself, an honor. It must not be permitted to create a superiority complex in the mind of the holder with a consequent neglect of the needs of the community. People must not only be willing but must be able to trust the government. An office holder should be and is, in fact, a servant. Demeanor may well be in accord with the position. That official who is firm in the belief that he is better and brighter than others cannot be fully trusted at all times.

2. Neither active nor passive dishonesty in public affairs, commonly called politics, should be permitted to enter into local problems. Misfeasance must be eliminated. Malfeasance in a public trust should be made a felony and punished as such regardless of so-called political power. Sympathy for a wrongdoer in private matters may be commendable but if extended to official wrongdoers, it is seed planted to yield an hundred fold of disaster.

3. Men without a willingness and ability to understand and to appreciate the viewpoint of those less fortunate than themselves are temperamentally unfit for public office. Egotism leads to selfishness and neglect of duty. An exaggerated ego in public men is always ridiculous.

4. The cost of government must be more equitably distributed. The person who had a million and lost half of it is still a half million better off than the many thousands of people who have lost all. Such a person should not be exempt from government cost because of losses. Ability to pay as well as a duty to pay should be considered in spreading taxes.

5. Public servants must be required to do a full day's work humbly and faithfully. The number selected and employed must be governed by the actual need and by neither the possibility of getting a job nor by the number of votes that can be delivered.

6. No public officer should be re-elected or transferred from one public office to another without first being permitted to retire for a time and earn his living as a private citizen. Promotion in public office, especially by election, usually isn't that at all. It is more frequently the result of political "drag," the harvest of a crop grown at public expense; a diseased condition of the body politic.

7. Governments must learn subtraction. Addition to the tax burden does not seem possible. There must be subtraction from costs. Death and taxes are said to be inevitable. Science has prolonged life and in many cases made death less terrible. If we should do some serious thinking we could reduce the tax burden.

8. Duplication of government effort is criminal waste. State, county and municipal governments should be so consolidated as to eliminate at least half of the combined costs. To accomplish this we must have the assistance of those now in office and those who hope to be. We will support candidates willing and able to assist in this reform.

9. The weakest thread in the fabric of community life is government. If, and when, this civilization reverts to chaos, as all prior civilizations have, so far as now known, it will be because of the lack of common honesty and human interest in the things that men do officially for others. Voters may well be militant in a demand for better and less expensive governments.

10. There are men in public service who measure up to the needs of the hour; but, their efforts are so constantly menaced by those of a lower value, as to create an atmosphere of distrust and hopelessness; a lack of confidence in those who really try to give us good government. We demand that decent service, honesty and efficiency, shall be the rule and not the exception; that politics shall not dominate local problems and that officials shall try to understand the obligation of an organized community to the individual.

We have exploited the individual and stressed his duty to government almost to the limit. It is time now to insist that government has some responsibility to the individual.

The reporter—Enid Scott and Barbara Cooper. Those on the nominating committee were: Jean Morse, Charlotte Fried and Lois Griffin.

Eighty-seven members, constituting the June class of 1934 will be graduated from Point Loma high school, June 14 at 8 o'clock. Simplicity, the keynote of the occasion, will be emphasized in the stage setting and decorations.

Graduation exercises, this year, will be presented by the seniors, instead of for the seniors. The only school organization outside of the class to participate, as in former years, will be the orchestra. This group is reluctant to give up its fine members. Miriam Fried, piano; Alice Taylor, viola; Beth Fox, violin; Anna Martin, cello; and Edgar Smith, French horn are being graduated.

Sir Edward Elgar's stirring processional "Pomp and Circumstance," will be played by the orchestra as the graduates take their places on the stage. The pledge of allegiance will be led by Fred Meiers, class president. Rev. Joseph S. Fox, of the Friends church, will give the invocation.

The Loman quartette, composed of Albert Barstow, David Fenn, Jack Thompson and Robert Scott will sing "Salute d'Amour," by Elgar and "The Little Soldiers" by Dr. Charles Vincent.

The valedictory address, "Education," will be given by Anna Martin. Immediately after the orchestra will play "Overture to William Tell," by Rassiini.

Rev. William O'Shea, of Saint Joseph's Catholic church, will address the graduates. After his speech Ruth Lindberg will play two piano solo, "Night Flower," by Cowles and "Brownies," by Korngold.

Principal Clarence Swenson will present the class to Fred M. Thompson of the Board of Education, who will present the diplomas. The members of the class will sing the traditional song, and will leave the stage to the music of the orchestra's recessional march.

Due to the limited capacity of the school auditorium, tickets must be presented for admission. Each graduate will be given eight tickets to distribute.

Baccalaureate service for the seniors will be held Sunday, June 10, in the All Saints Episcopal church at 4 o'clock. The Reverend Karn of All Saints Episcopal church will address the seniors. The Girls' Glee club and of Point Loma, directed by Myron Green will present musical numbers.

Sydney Owen will leave this morning (Friday), for Buffalo, New York with her parents.

On Friday, June 1, the Junior High Honor society had their annual picnic at Mission Beach. Games on the beach and swimming furnished the entertainment. A picnic supper was enjoyed by everyone and the party proved to be a great success.

The Senior High Girl's and Boy's Glee clubs of Point Loma enjoyed a beach party at Mission Beach, Saturday, June 2. A big crowd turned out. Swimming, games, and the amusement center proved popular. A large picnic supper was served, a huge bon-fire was built after supper and everyone gathered around it and sang and toasted marshmallows.

A delightful tea dance was given

Committees Appointed For Pioneer Celebration

At a community meeting held last Friday evening June 1st, plans were made for arrangements in regard to the Ocean Beach Pioneers Barbecue and celebration.

James Murphy of Old Town, experienced barbecue man, has been contacted and gave his price to barbecue and serve the meat for the event.

Col. D. C. Collier, old timer here, sent regrets that he could not be at the meeting but would make his plans so he might be here for the celebration, at which time he is expected to be speaker for the program.

A committee composed of Messrs. E. E. Steele and R. Nagel, Messdames A. Dumont, Amy Cunningham, J. W. McCausland and T. Kyle, were appointed to make all arrangements in regard to barbecue and dinner.

Mrs. Winifred Davidson was made chairman of parade and pageant committee with the following assistants: Jean Rittenhouse, Mrs. C. W. Varney and Col. D. C. Collier.

The Ocean Beach Woman's club will have charge of the local entertainment.

The Chamber of Commerce dance committee composed of Floyd Lewis, J. R. Lowmes and H. J. Thomas will have charge of the dance and music.

Publicity committee will be composed of Mrs. W. Davidson, Mrs. J. W. Dick, Mrs. H. Eulberg and H. H. Hartvigsen.

The meeting decided to hold the celebration on Saturday afternoon and evening, June 30th.

Since 1822 to 1825, more than 100 years, Ocean Beach has a wonderful history of beach picnics and gay occasions. It is here that San Diego naturally established its original picnic ground on the best and most favorable beach in the county.

Those people who lived here in the early days of fifty years ago are entitled to be honored with a festival and those who came too during the earlier part of the 20th century. They will meet here again and talk over old times, old friends will enjoy a day that may long be remembered, with pleasant memories and a happy occasion for all that take part.

Aside from the barbecue and dinner for the older people there will be other entertainment to fill out a good half day of fun and likely a street dance to finish the evening.

RED'S SANDWICH SHOP OPENS BEER GARDEN

Marshall Malcolm, proprietor Red's Sandwich Shop at 4862 Voltaire street, the first of the week, secured a dance-in-cafe license from the city council and has now opened a beer garden and dance hall in connection with his eating place on Voltaire.

The residence which Red bought at the above address some time ago lent itself with little remodeling into the new arrangement and with a trade already established in his cafe he expects to enjoy a good business in his new venture.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Reed's Victory Over Pinchot Delights Opponents of New Deal—NRA Will Abandon Codes for Small Businesses.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© by Western Newspaper Union.

SENATOR DAVID A. REED of Pennsylvania, fighting in the Republican primaries for re-nomination, emerged from the hectic battle victorious over his rival, Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Reed's majority was in the neighborhood of 100,000, and long before all the returns were in Governor Pinchot gave up and wired his congratulations to the senator.

Since Senator Reed, one of the Old Guard conservatives, has been an unrelenting critic of the New Deal, and Governor Pinchot, a "progressive" Republican, has given his full support to President Roosevelt's policies, the result of the primaries was hailed with glee by opponents of the national administration. Both the candidates made the New Deal the issue in their campaign, and when the governor was prevented by illness from making speeches, Mrs. Pinchot took the stump and vigorously defended the President's programs of recovery. Notwithstanding all this, Postmaster Farley said: "I do not regard the defeat of Governor Pinchot as a New Deal test," and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, took the same attitude. President Roosevelt refused to comment.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, issued a pronouncement that the Pennsylvania primary result was "a great victory for the American citizen who wants a square deal and not a New Deal."

Governor Pinchot, who has tried twice before to get into the senate, said he would continue to fight for the interests of the people against concentrated wealth, and it was reported that he would run independently in November.

Joe Guffey, Democratic leader in Pennsylvania, easily won his party's nomination for the senate, but the Republicans claim he will have small chance against Reed in the election. New Jersey also held a primary election. The Republicans nominated Senator Hamilton F. Kean for re-election and Harold G. Hoffman for governor. The Democrats who will oppose them are Gov. Harry A. Moore and Judge William L. Dill.

LEADERS of the Republican party in Indiana turned down Senator Arthur R. Robinson quite decisively. They not only defeated his plan to gain control of the party organization, but also refused to give assurance that he would be unopposed for renomination in the state convention June 5. The best the senator could get was an endorsement of his fight in the senate "for constitutional government" and for his stand "against bureaucracy as exemplified by the Democratic party and its administration."

Among those mentioned as possible rivals of Robinson for the nomination are former Senator Jim Watson, former Representative Frederick Landis and former Gov. Harry G. Leslie. Robinson angered the state committee by attacking its officers.

IN ORDER that congress may adjourn June 5, the President and several congressional leaders got together and pared down the legislative program. They agreed to limit the "must" bills to four measures. These are:

The one billion, three hundred million-dollar emergency appropriation bill carrying funds for the continuation of the New Deal relief activities. The communications control bill proposing the consolidation of federal regulation over all communications.

The loans to industries bill, authorizing RFC and federal reserve bank advances to smaller industries on intermediate credit terms.

The deposit insurance extension bill, continuing the temporary federal bank deposit guarantee plan for another year in lieu of putting the permanent program contained in the Glass banking bill into effect at this time.

Mr. Roosevelt sent to congress a message explaining why the first named bill is necessary, and urging that no more than the amount asked be appropriated.

One other measure that may be put through at this session is the silver bill upon which the President and the silver bloc agreed and which was to be introduced with a message from Mr. Roosevelt. As predicted, this is a compromise containing these provisions:

A declaration of policy that the government recognizes silver as primary money and that the nation's metallic reserves shall be 25 per cent silver and 75 per cent gold. This is mandatory.

The secretary of the treasury is authorized and directed to purchase silver until it reaches $1.29 an ounce or until its metallic reserve strength reaches 25 per cent. This is both permissive and mandatory.

The President is authorized to nationalize silver through condemnation. This is permissive.

CONSIDERATION of the records of three Chicago federal judges in receivership and bankruptcy cases were under consideration by the house judiciary committee, with the possibility of impeachment in prospect. A subcommittee turned in a report on the jurists, Charles E. Woodward, James H. Wilkerson and Walter G. Lindley, making no recommendations for or against impeachment but criticizing sharply their allowances for attorney and receiver fees.

With respect to Judge John P. Barnes, who has handled several receiverships and bankruptcies in the federal courts at Chicago since 1933, the subcommittee declared it had "no criticism as to his conduct in these matters."

"SNATCHERS" are not faring so well in the far west and south-west. Six-year-old June Robles, who was kidnapped from Tucson, Ariz., was found in a tomb-like hole where she had been kept chained, and there were good chances that her abductors would be caught. The child was weak but uninjured.

Los Angeles police in a sudden raid freed William F. Gettle, oil millionaire who had been kidnapped and held for a large ransom, and arrested three of the men who abducted him. The trio confessed, were promptly given life sentences and are now in the San Quentin prison.

GENERAL JOHNSON and his assistants in the NRA are tired of trying to enforce the multiplicity of codes for small groups, and therefore the administration has decided to abandon thousands of those arranged for lesser industrial plants and service establishments. In fact, to regulate prices and trade practices and innumerable details in countless small businesses has proved to be impracticable and the effort has taken an outrageously large percentage of NRA work and funds.

Johnson said he was working on arrangements to substitute simple agreements for codes covering small industries. These agreements merely will cover wages, hours and the collective bargaining guarantees of the recovery act.

The silk textile industry found itself overloaded with surpluses of goods, and the NRA permitted all the mills to shut down for one week, during which time 30,000 workers are unemployed. The shutdown was ordered by the silk textile authority.

STRIKES in many branches of the automobile industry will occur unless the striking employees of the Fisher Body plant at Flint, Mich., win their demands, according to President Green of the American Federation of Labor.

"The strike of the workers employed at the Fisher Body plant at Flint, Mich., reflects the spirit of unrest and discontent which prevails among the automobile workers at the present time," Green said in a statement.

"There will be no peace in the automobile industry," he added, "until the grievances of the workers are fairly settled, discrimination and coercion stopped, the right of collective bargaining established and company union domination and intimidation stopped."

Green said the unrest hinged on the issue of company unions and that automobile workers were "resentful" that the settlement of the threatened automobile industry strike a few weeks ago was generally hailed as a triumph for the company union and a defeat for organized labor.

Dissatisfaction has been accentuated, he added, "because of the failure of the automobile labor board to function properly and effectively."

Labor troubles along the American waterfronts increased daily. On the Pacific coast thousands of seamen quit work in sympathy with the striking longshoremen, and the mayor of Seattle asked Secretary of the Interior Ickes for federal troops to protect non-union workers. In the ports of the Great Lakes a general strike of tugmen was threatened. At Galveston the longshoremen were still out, and hundreds of other workers went on strike.

CAPT. GEORGE POND and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli opened the ocean flying season with an attempt to make a nonstop hop from New York to Rome—a thing that has never yet been done. They ran into dense fogs and head winds over the Atlantic and then had such serious engine trouble that they were forced to land their big Bellanca monoplane, the Leonardo da Vinci, on the west coast of Ireland. According to their stories the aviators were mighty fortunate that they did not fall into the ocean and drown.

BY A vote of 62 to 13 the senate passed the Fletcher-Rayburn bill which places the securities markets of the country under the regulatory control of a federal commission. The measure already had passed the house, but with the provision that the federal trade commission should be the regulatory body, and this difference, together with the house's provision for a fixed margin requirement, caused some delay in the conference. At a press conference President Roosevelt stated that he preferred the house version of the bill in those two particulars and that he had told the chairman of the committees so, although he had kept his hands off the measure until it was passed by both house and senate.

THE White Star liner Olympic, coming slowly into port in a fog, rammed and sank the Nantucket lightship, seven of the latter's crew being killed and four, including Capt. George Braithwaite, saved. Captain Binks of the Olympic blames the accident on an error in the radio direction beam which he was following, though this device has heretofore been considered infallible. He admitted, however, that at the time of the collision he was five miles off his supposed course and that his radio signals, submarine signals and reckoning all misled him as to his real position.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY SWANSON announced that as soon as funds can be obtained from the public works appropriation asked by the President, the construction of twenty warships will begin. These vessels, it is estimated, will cost $40,000,000.

This building program will include twelve destroyers, two destroyer leaders, and six submarines, forming the first year's program under the Vinson act, which authorized the replacement of 102 ships to bring the navy up to full treaty strength by the end of 1939. The policy of the administration is to lay down the rest of the 102 replacement ships in the next four years.

FOR twenty-six years a prejudice dating back to the Civil war has kept the state of Virginia from being represented in the Statuary hall in the Capitol at Washington. This state of affairs has now come to an end, for congress has accepted as gifts from Virginia the two statues which were first offered in 1908 and rejected. They are a copy of the famous statue of Washington by Houdin and a statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee by Valentine.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts presided at the ceremonies and by his side was Senator Glass of Virginia. The presentation was made by Gov. George Peery of Virginia and the chief speaker was Dr. Francis Gaines, president of Washington and Lee university.

"WORLD Good Will day" was May 13, and to mark it students from colleges in all parts of the country gathered in Washington and staged a demonstration in support of world disarmament.

Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, was chairman of the affair, and after the meeting, Miss Wheeler led a delegation to the White House and presented to President Roosevelt a petition asking him to take the lead in securing a world treaty for complete disarmament.

News from abroad indicates that this is imposing a tremendous task on Mr. Roosevelt, for the prospects of disarmament are growing slimmer daily. There is no abatement of the quarrel between France and Germany over German rearmament, and France has lengthened the term of service of its soldiers, which example Belgium probably will follow. Hungary and Yugoslavia are engaged in a bitter border dispute and the former has asked for help from the League of Nations council, which has opened another session in Geneva. Japan, still stubbornly aloof, seems to be seeking a new cause for hostilities against China, alleging that a number of Japanese soldiers were killed by Chinese troops.

The League's commission on the Paraguay-Bolivia war in the Gran Chaco submitted a report recommending that all nations of the world, especially the American republics, be asked to join in an effort to shut off from the two South American countries all the materials necessary to carry on a war.

WAR in Arabia has come to an end for the present, an armistice having been officially announced. King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, apparently is the victor, for it was stated his terms had been accepted by the Imam Yahya of Yemen, though the terms of the treaty were not made public immediately. Ibn Saud's modernly equipped armies already had captured Hodeida, the Yemen seaport.

King Ibn Saud has been gradually extending his power since 1924, and it was believed he intended to add Yemen to his territories. He took advantage of a border quarrel to start hostilities some weeks ago. In a recent interview Ibn Saud said: "I have never envisaged territorial expansion, and I have never desired to conquer Yemen, but just as the conquest of Hejaz was forced upon me a decade ago by the hostilities of King Hussein, similarly Yahya has forced war upon me now by sending troops into Nasir and Najran while nominally engaged in negotiations for peaceful settlement."

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

AN UNEXPECTED FRIEND

WHILE Redcoat the Tanager was telling Peter Rabbit of his dreadful accident, Mrs. Tanager was flying about in the treetops nearby, calling anxiously. She did not look at all like Redcoat, for she was dressed almost wholly in light olive green and greenish yellow. "He can't even fly up just a little way so as to get off the ground!" she cried anxiously. "Isn't it dreadful, Peter Rabbit, to have such an accident happen? We've just got our nest half built, and I don't know what I shall do if anything happens to

Meanwhile Mrs. Tanager Came and Talked to Him and Fussed About Him.

Redcoat. Oh, dear, here comes some body! Hide, Redcoat! Hide!" Poor Redcoat, with the old look of terror in his eyes, hurried along, trying to find something under which to hide. But there was no way of hiding that wonderful scarlet coat. Peter heard the sound of heavy footsteps, and looking back saw Farmer Brown's Boy coming. "Don't be afraid, Redcoat," he whispered. "It's Farmer Brown's Boy, and I'm sure he won't hurt you. Perhaps he can help you." Then he scampered off a short distance and sat up to watch what would happen.

Of course, Farmer Brown's Boy saw Redcoat. No one with any eyes at all could have helped seeing him because of that wonderful scarlet coat. He saw, too, by the way Redcoat was acting, that he was in great trouble. He understood instantly that something was wrong with one wing, and running forward he caught Redcoat.

"You poor little thing. You poor beautiful little creature," said Farmer Brown's Boy softly as he saw the cruel twig sticking through Redcoat's shoulder. "We'll have to get that out right away," continued Farmer Brown's Boy, stroking Redcoat ever so gently. Somehow at that gentle touch Redcoat lost much of his fear and a little hope sprang into his heart. This was no enemy, but a friend. With his knife Farmer Brown's Boy cut off the twig on the upper side of the wing. Then, doing his best to be careful and to hurt as little as possible, he worked the other part of the twig out from the under side. Carefully he examined the wing to see if any bones were broken. None was, and after holding Redcoat a few minutes, he carefully set him up in a tree and withdrew a short distance. Redcoat sat there for some time as if fearful of trying that injured wing. Meanwhile Mrs. Tanager came and talked to him and fussed about him and coaxed him and made as much of him as if he were a baby.

After a while he ventured to try his wing and found that he could fly. Then he and Mrs. Tanager disappeared in the Green Forest.

"I knew Farmer Brown's Boy would help him, and I'm so glad he found him," cried Peter happily and started for the dear Old Briar Patch.

THIRST-QUENCHING DRINKS

LONG ago before a mixed drink was ever thought of, the lemon was the king of fruit, used for refreshing, healthful drinks as well as served hot, for medicinal purposes. Today it is more popular and more widely used, as it is needed to give zest to almost any other fruit drink.

For those who like to have a tinkling drink to offer a friend in a hurry, the fruit juice mixed with the sirup is a great convenience. Take one and one-half cupfuls of lemon juice and add three cupfuls of sugar. Bring to a boil and cook for ten minutes, then bottle and place in the ice chest. Use the sirup in glasses of water and ice without any further preparation. A tablespoonful or two to a glass is sufficient.

Lemons as well as oranges are rich in vitamin C. They are recommended as the best kind of a preserver for the teeth. Mix lemon juice and salt and use as a cleanser of teeth and gums. Add water and use as a mouth wash. It leaves the mouth feeling refreshed and stimulated, is especially good for the gums, to harden and keep them firm and healthy.

Raisins.

Put one pound of raisins through the food chopper, add a quart of water and bring to a boil, then let stand overnight. Add the juice of two lemons, two tablespoonfuls of the sirup and pour into glasses half filled with cracked ice.

Coffee Caramel Parfait.

Scald one and one-half cupfuls of milk with two tablespoonfuls of ground coffee, add one-half cupful of caramelized sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt to the strained milk and coffee. Beat two egg yolks with one-half cupful of sugar and add to the other ingredients. Cool, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and one and one-half cupfuls of cream. Pour into a mold and pack in ice and salt for four hours.

Carbon Dioxide

Carbon dioxide, the stuff of which all vegetation is made, is held in the atmosphere. Remove it and there would be no trees and grass and consequently no higher animal life. The same can be said of the oxygen we breathe and of the nitrogen by which it is diluted, so that we may not be consumed by a process of flameless combustion, and of the comparatively rare gas hydrogen. Life depends not only on an atmosphere, but on a very complex atmosphere of the right chemical composition and physical state.

HUMMING BIRDS

Nest of a Humming Bird.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

ALTHOUGH members of the humming bird family are the tiniest of birds, they belong to a huge family. There are 488 known species of humming birds and there are 150 or more additional subspecies or geographic races, making a total of more than 600 recognized kinds.

They are found only in the New world, where they range from the Strait of Magellan to Canada and Alaska, constituting one of the most brilliantly colored and specialized families of birds found in this vast region.

The family is most abundant, as regards species, near the Equator, in the Andean region of South America. The Republic of Ecuador has 148 kinds of hummers and Colombia 105 known forms.

In passing north and south from these centers of maximum abundance, species become fewer; so that in North America north of Mexico (but including Lower California) only 16 kinds of humming birds are found regularly, while three others may come casually within these limits.

In the United States humming birds are found in greatest variety in the Southwest, only one species, the ruby-throat, ranging east of the Mississippi river.

The mountain meadows of our southwestern states in midsummer, when their rich assortments of flowers are in bloom, frequently swarm with humming birds of a number of species feeding on the blossoms and pursuing one another pugnaciously in pure exuberance of life. It is under such circumstances that these sprightly birds appear at their best, and one never tires of watching them.

Humming birds are most abundant in regions where there are thickets or other woodland interspersed with meadows and openings where the birds may feed and disport themselves in the sunshine. Some kinds are inhabitants of heavy forests, these being found mainly in tropical regions, where certain species have become adapted to life in the dense rain forests.

Inhabitant of Dense Forests.

The emerald humming bird of Haiti and the Dominican republic lives in the densest of forest growths, where the vegetation drips constantly with water from the daily rains, and comes only occasionally into little openings to feed at flowers. Its deep-green coloration blends with its forest background, so that often the subdued humming of its wings, as it moves among the branches, may be heard for some time before one can distinguish the form of the bird in the somber shadows.

An existence of such a type is in strong contrast to that of the beautiful long-tailed Sappho hummer that is found in the Andean foothills of western Argentina, living in open valleys grown with low creosote bush, where the birds are constantly found in the open.

The majority of hummers are characterized by glittering reflections from their plumage, and as a general rule the males are more brilliant than the females.

The hues of the plumage are iridescent and are caused by the refraction of light. On close examination of the feather of a bird, it is found to be composed of many fine filaments, which under the microscope are seen to be divided into still finer divisions. In the shining feathers of hummers, there is an abundance of dark pigment in the tiny feather divisions known as barbules. The sheath overlying this pigment is either smooth and highly polished or has many minute lines on or under its surface. This structure causes a reflection or a refraction of the light, according to the circumstance, making the brilliant hues found in these birds.

As for form, the variation among hummers is truly astonishing. The smallest bird in the world is Helena's humming bird of Cuba, from two and one-fourth to two and one-half inches long or less and the bill less than half an inch long.

This tiny sprite is sometimes called the fairy hummer. In contrast to it, there is the giant hummer of the central and southern Andean mountains that is about eight and one-half inches in length and has a wing five inches long. This species is as large in body as a bluebird and is strong and powerful, resembling a large swift in general appearance.

Variations in Form.

Variations in details of form are as remarkable as those in size. In one species of hummer, the sword-bearer, the bill is nearly five inches long, being longer than the rest of the bird. Another has the bill less than a quarter of an inch long.

Most hummers have straight bills, but there is the sicklebill, in which the bill is curved so that its outline forms one-third of a circle. Such adaptations allow feeding in special flowers, the sword-bearer frequenting long, trumpet-shaped blossoms, while the sicklebill is partial to certain orchids, palms, and other peculiar blossoms, where the throat of the flower is curved.

Variations in the form of the tail in this group are equally remarkable. Most species have the feathers of ordinary length, forming a square or slightly notched tail, but in contrast to these there are the racket-tailed hummers, in which the lateral feathers are greatly elongated, with the tip narrowed and then expanded so that it resembles a racket. The long-tailed hummers have tails three or four times as long as the body, the longest feathers being seven inches in length.

It is usual for male humming birds to have a spot of brilliant iridescent color on the throat. With this there are often peculiar feather developments in the form of crests, or gorgets, that provide increased surface for these areas of brilliant color, and often produce most remarkable and extraordinary appearances.

In search of specimens of humming birds for the National museum, Dr. Alexander Wetmore of the Smithsonian Institution visited the little island of Vieques, east of Puerto Rico, in the West Indies, and on his first morning in the country collected a tiny hummer feeding at flowers in the top of a small tree. In the air it had appeared ordinary, but, to his amazement, when it came to his hand it possessed a long, pointed crest of the most brilliant green imaginable.

The nests of humming birds are made of soft plant downs, formed into a cup-shaped structure that in most instances is placed firmly on some small twig or branch, sometimes near the ground and sometimes high above it. The outside of this structure usually is covered with bits of bark and moss bound in place with spider web, so that the nest is inconspicuous, resembling merely a knot on a limb. Some species attach their nests to leaves or to the ends of branches, so that they are semipendent.

Two white eggs, resembling pearls against their background of plant down, are laid by most species whose nesting habits are known. Occasionally one egg constitutes a set, and rarely three. Though large in comparison to the size of the parent, in the case of the smaller hummers, the eggs are very tiny. Those of the vervain hummer of Haiti, a species that is barely larger than the smallest species known, measure less than half an inch long by one-third of an inch in diameter.

Eat Nectar and Insects.

That humming birds feed on the nectar of flowers is universally known, but the part that nectar plays in their diet is not so great as is popularly believed, since large numbers of tiny flies, bees, beetles, and other insects, as well as spiders, are captured in the flower corollas.

These tiny birds are hungry for meat as well as for sweets. The stomachs of the various species that have been examined to learn something of their food have been filled with fragments of insects and spiders. After the nutriment has been extracted from these, the indigestible parts are formed into tiny pellets that are regurgitated to empty the stomach for another meal.

Some kinds of hummers, particularly forest-inhabiting forms, pay little attention to blossoms, but spend much of their time in gleaning over the moss-covered bark of the trees of their forest haunt searching for animal food. Others have been seen feeding on tiny gnats gathered in whirling clouds in the air. The hummers hang with rapidly vibrating wings, seizing the minute insects one by one in flight and whirling about with the greatest celerity in securing their prey.

Flowers, however, are attractive to most humming birds. In the semiarid sections of western Argentina, a red-flowered epiphyte is highly attractive to them. The general tone of vegetation in these desert areas is gray-green, so that the red color of the flowers stands out prominently at a distance. It is evident that they are sought by the hummers, as the birds fly directly from clump to clump even when these are separated by a considerable distance.

In their feeding, hummers, like bees, carry pollen from blossom to blossom and some species are important agents in the fertilization of flowers.

CONGRESS AT THE FINISH

The Seventy-third Congress is on its death bed and soon will be passing, from the infirmities of old age; not that it has been so long since, but it has been in busy session since last January and that is long enough, for it has grown old fast from the responsibilities of carrying on one of the most complex sessions, perhaps in all history making.

Adjournment is now set for June 9th—and this dead line will be adhered to in all probability even if some of the major items remaining on the President's legislative program must be abandoned to accomplish the objective. First of all, the President thinks the Congress members should quit talking and go home. There is danger should they continue with debating until after the 15th, the date when debts of foreign nations fall due, totaling nearly 175 million dollars. President Roosevelt fears that the opportunity will be afforded to a few for making inflammatory and provocative speeches designed to stir up bad feeling and lay the groundwork for further antagonisms on both sides of the Atlantic.

Perhaps the President thinks he can get along about as well alone, without the applause of such a vociferous body as constitutes a modern congress. Since more authority has been granted to a president the past year, it would not seem unlikely if the chief executive craved silence and quiet as he takes up the important questions requiring more concentration and thought than storms of conversation and debate. It is on these assumptions that the President sees relief and good reasons for immediate adjournment.

A little more than a hundred years ago this month, S. B. F. Morse perfected his invention of the electric telegraph, known as the Morse code. The first model of his instrument was made on ship-board as he was returning to America in 1832 but it took eleven long years to beat down public prejudice and get it through congress. Morse's first message, "What hath God wrought," was flashed over the wire from Washington to Baltimore in 1844. The American telegraph company was formed to operate between Washington and New York in 1845. Morse fought, worked, persisted and stuck by his phenomenal invention. He met every obstacle without flinching or weakness. He was rebuffed in his homeland, he tried to sell his patent to England and failed. He offered it to Russia with the same result. France adopted it and then absorbed it. However, he lived to see the child of his brain accepted by many European countries. He was ultimately honored with an international prize of $80,000—and a bronze statue in New York.

Hundreds of times in these devious days of conflict men are heard to say that the world is growing better, but it cannot be true so long as nations rise up in arms against nations, kingdom against kingdom. It seems to be getting so that the man who tries to do right becomes the object of hatred and spite. We see in politics, many betraying and despising one another. They go about like false prophets and succeed in misleading many. There is very little genuine effort in every-day politics; on the other hand, there is a decided spread of lawlessness and an increase of greed which fill our courts and shows up guilty convicts of crime, from deeds of desperate hold-ups, kidnaping and burglary. In solemn truth this is a sad commentary on the present generation. So long as we court crime, graft and war we cannot rise very far above a pagan civilization. We need to reform and a good beginning would be with the making over of some political standards and eliminating prejudice, selfishness and party politics.

Foreign debts from thirteen nations fall due on June 15, and Uncle Sam should have $174,647,439 to deposit to his bank account. A debt is always considered a bad psychological effect upon an individual or nation, especially when it is influenced by the elements of default. Foreign suasion has not been encouraging for the past few years, toward debt settlement, but the United States has shown good moral integrity, in believing that no nation would refuse to pay no more than an able-bodied man would refuse to pay his grocer. It is believed, however, that the President has certain concrete plans in mind by which he hopes to advance the chances for a settlement of the debt question on a basis acceptable to "fair-minded elements" both at home and abroad.

If we could have an election campaign without the professional politician butting in, it would be a far advance toward the millennium. Political weather always appears with its storm warnings flying in the form of cutting sentences of spite, fire and prejudice, just prior to the primaries. No good candidate should have to humiliate himself to seek office, for the office usually seeks that man. Today there is such a race of running for office that any worthy candidate finds himself disgraced by brass band politics. No wonder millions are spent on dishonest candidates, who are so plentiful and cheap!

The heat in the Middle West is doing its work rather early this year, and the dangers from a severe drought to growing crops, is enough to make us glad we live in California. Our rainless summers is the secret of our healthy climate. With the great blue ocean fanning us with the bracing salt air, keeps life vigorous, and people full of pep go to their duties unhampered by disease. One can stand the hot weather through the day when the nights are cool and restful. Instead of a night fan blowing over your body, blankets are most comfortable in California.

One of the inexorable laws of human nature is the power to create happiness through giving. You cannot make others happy without getting a good portion of it yourself. If your giving is thru some sacrifice, remember that sacrifice kindles joy, the keynote of a happy life. The one who has earned this philosophy is not only making happiness for others, but making life a joyous fulfillment for himself. Byron wrote: "All who joy would win, must share it—happiness was born a twin."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church. The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Among the Bible citations in the Lesson-Sermon are the verses from The Acts: "And a certain man came from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple; who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms. . . . Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk. And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up; and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength."

One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, includes the statements: "Christian Science brings to the body the sunlight of Truth, which invigorates and purifies. Christian Science acts as an alternative, neutralizing error with Truth. It changes the secretions, expels humors, dissolves tumors, relaxes rigid muscles, restores carious bones to soundness."

OCEAN BEACH KIWANIANS

LEARN ABOUT VIOLIN MAKING

Dr. J. W. Wilhoit was chairman of the day at Wednesday's Kiwanis luncheon, having as his speaker, Dr. R. H. Williams of San Diego.

The speaker's topic, "The Old Violin" was a subject with which he showed much knowledge. While he had given his spare time to the art for some three years he was under a most able instructor, and gave the members a splendid insight of the care and painstaking manner in which these craftsmen carried on their trade.

He told of Antonius Stradivarius, whose original methods had never been improved; that this old master began making violins at 16 years of age and continued until he was 92.

After demonstrating the remaking of the violin Dr. Williams said the law of evolution in the past had applied to the universe but not to man. He believed the world now was coming to the stage of great enlightenment and that we were due for revelations in the social system that would lead to a better plane of living.

No meeting will be held at Ocean Beach next week but the club will join with San Diego Kiwanis at the El Cortez hotel Monday evening, June 11, in celebration of All Kiwanis Night, together with wives and partners of the members.

Joe Zarick and W. H. Kennedy of La Jolla club were visitors Wednesday.

Miss Merle Shumway arrived Monday evening from Charter Oak, Iowa. She is planning to spend the summer here with her cousin Alice McAlpine.

Former California Man Now Head Christian Science Church

Boston, Mass., June 4—Virtual completion of the new Christian Science Publishing House in Boston, Massachusetts, and gratitude to the Field for its loyal support which made this achievement possible was the keynote at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, held here today.

Better and quicker healing and closer unity in its demonstration, as well as greater consecration to the ideals set up by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, were impressed upon the "army of Christian Science workers," more than 6000 strong, who attended this annual meeting. These workers are representatives of a field which extends to such remote points as Australia, South Africa, the Philippines, as well as England and many of the continental countries. Practically every state in the Union and many parts of Canada also are represented.

Announcement was made of the election of the following officers:

President—Dr. John M. Brewer, of Cambridge, Mass.

Treasurer—Edward L. Ripley, of Brookline, Mass.

Clerk—Ezra W. Palmer, of Brookline, Mass.

The new President of The Mother Church, Dr. John M. Brewer, is a native of Antioch, California. He graduated from the University of California at Berkeley in 1902. In 1916 he received the Ph. D. degree in education from Harvard University and became an instructor there.

The bride, charming in white crepe, was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth L. Shepherd, wearing blue crepe. Spencer Wilson was best man.

The bride was graduated from Point Loma high school in 1932, and her husband from La Jolla high school the same year.

After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ingram will be at home in La Jolla.

DOINGS OF MASONS AND STARS

Point Loma chapter will hold its annual card party June 13th in the Point Loma Masonic hall. A gypsy motif will be the theme of the day. The hall will be gay with booths where gypsies will tell one's past and future by card or palm, as well as other gypsy entertainment.

Refreshments will be served at 1:30. Margaret Reinfrank will be chairman of the day assisted by Hazel Lathrop, refreshments; Ruth Berndt, decorations; Carrie Mason, prizes; Pearl Bryan, tallies; Florence Cobb, candy.

Games and various sports were participated in during the day. At noon a wonderful dinner was served in the garden under the oak trees. This in an annual affair and judging by the enthusiasm shown it is an event looked forward to from year to year.

The committee consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee, Mrs. George Kenline and Milton Schachtebeck.

EXAMINATIONS FOR TRUST INSTITUTIONS

New Move by Federal Banking Authorities Welcomed by Banks and Trust Companies, Says Bankers' Organization

FEDERAL examination of trust departments is the latest development in banking supervision and trust companies and banks operating trust departments are welcoming this development because it fills a long-felt want, it is stated by the Trust Division of the American Bankers Association.

Despite the growing importance of American trust business in recent years examining officials have never given to trust departments the attention paid to commercial banking departments, this authority points out. Now the Federal Reserve System, in conjunction with the Comptroller of the Currency, has undertaken to bring the examination of trust departments up to the level of commercial bank examinations, it says.

Experts in trust work are being employed by the various Federal Reserve Banks. These experts will head the special staffs of trust examiners in the twelve Federal Reserve Districts. Special staffs are already at work in some of the Reserve Districts, including Boston, Atlanta, Richmond and Chicago. The Federal Reserve will examine the trust departments of state-chartered members of the Reserve System.

Uniform Supervision
Meanwhile, the Comptroller of the Currency has built up over the past two years a staff of special examiners for the trust departments of national banks. All national banks are members of the Federal Reserve System. Since nearly all state-chartered trust institutions are members of the Reserve System the new plan will bring about what amounts to Federal examination for the trust business.

State examining authorities probably will follow Federal supervisory policies to a considerable extent. Hence, coordination of the procedure of the national banking system and the Federal Reserve System is expected to result in a uniform system of examinations for trust departments in all banks. This in turn should produce considerable standardization in the operation of trust departments, the division declares.

CARLSON AND THE LOCAL RAILROAD—CONTINUED

The Union reporter whose story "Where Was Billy's Smile" appeared in the issue of April 5, 1890, was very evidently not permitted to give full rein to fancy. His facts have found it is true an atmosphere of genial appreciation of the Carlson—San Diego railroad situation; but comment upon that situation is wisely held back. The story continues:

"At D street a number of lights were noticed along the supposed Carlson grade across the Old Town flats, near the Selwyn slaughter house; and it did not take long for the fact to be learned that a force of men were there at work, taking up the rails and loading them on the wagons which were making rapid trips to the steamship wharf."

It was evident that the Carlson railroad was being demolished and that at a rapid rate. There were two explanations found. One lay in the fact that the steamship company held a judgment against the Ocean Beach Company for the use of a motor and were taking this midnight method of settling the same. The other lay in the rumor that some five months ago while Captain J. H. Simpson was abroad, Billy Carlson stole a march on the steamship company by taking from the 22nd Street depot several carloads of iron belonging to the steamship company, and using the same in the construction of the road from Roseville across the flats north of the bay. These were the rails which were last night taken from the track and delivered at the steamship wharf, whence at an early hour they were transferred to the steamer and will probably leave today for the north."

On one of his visits to San Diego many years after the event, Carlson told that he himself tore up the rails—having sold all the Ocean Beach lots that it was then possible to dispose of. Just what rails were torn up by Carlson has never been made quite clear to later investigators of this Homeric proceeding. Frank McElwee, who came to Ocean Beach in 1905, has this version of the story: "That having laid out Ocean Beach and built the hotel here, Carlson and Higgins started to build a railroad, which had its beginning somewhere in San Diego. 'It followed along the bay to Roseville...' That is, it came along the bay to McCauley street, where it turned west. '...There they ran out of money. Carlson had an old dinky engine. He took it and tore up the rails in town and brought them out and started to extend the road through Carlson Canyon. You can see part of the grade back of Andy's Sandwich shop, about where the old Cushman house is. There was a cut through there. It crossed Hillard's place, and went across the flats to Saratoga, not far from Sunset Cliffs Bend. That is the way he got the cars over.'"

Joseph Hillard who came to Ocean Beach in 1894 knows the story of the original "Carlson house" at Ocean Beach. "It now stands," he says, "on Saratoga near Guizot. Mr. Winans owns it. A. G. Spalding bought it years ago. It was moved at least six times. Originally it stood where the well was: near Ebers, Santa Monica and Saratoga streets."

Next week—

SYNOPSIS

Ranceford Kershaw, last male member of the Kershaw clan, dies suddenly while riding with his daughter, Lorry. Years before, at the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for ranching and cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife christens Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley, a Texan, settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water for irrigation. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side.

Rance Kershaw's not too stable heart leaped in triumph. "Keep your check," he ordered harshly, "and I'll keep my water."

Lorraine Kershaw came out of the house. Straight down the little gravelled walk she came to the gate. Nate Tichenor noticed how straight she walked; noticed, too, that she had been weeping recently. She was a strikingly pretty girl; her hair was jet-black and shiny; her eyes large and dark and lustrous; her skin a pale ivory with a faint rose radiance seeping up through it.

"The Hensley apology is accepted," she cried in a clear ringing voice. "And you may keep your check. That fence was charged off to depreciation before you and I were born. Please give our compliments to your mother and your aunts and say that the Kershaws will be very pleased to see that hereafter the Bar H ranch gets all the water the Circle K can give it."

"They won't, either," old Rance shouted.

"Pay no attention to father," the girl admonished, in a tone meant for young Tichenor's ears alone. "He can't help holding his ancient grudge. But the Bar H shall have the water. I give you my word of honor it shall. This morning at eleven o'clock I became the foreman of the Circle K, and I'll keep the floodgates closed at our diversion dam and turn the water into your irrigation ditches when we're done with it, instead of diverting it back into Eden Valley creek. Run along now, Nate Tichenor, and may God bless you and protect you and bring you safe back to your mother in Eden Valley."

He stared at her. And then he blinked because the tears of emotion were in his boy's eyes. He held out his hand across the gate. "Good-by, Lorry Kershaw," he said with difficulty. "I thank you with all my heart. You're mighty sweet."

She accepted his hand, to the great scandal of her father; she stood at the gate and watched him jog away down the valley, sitting very straight in his carved and silver-mounted stock-saddle.

"Come, come, old settler," she said. "It's time to cease hurling maledictions and start praying. And I promised him the water."

He was silent at that. Then: "Well, I suppose it won't hurt us to let 'em have it." He must have thought then of his own gallant stripping son. "Just as well to take things easy now, Lorry. Even if they both come back they'll never shoot each other. If that Tichenor pup's a fair sample, the Hensley clan ain't run to seed in this generation."

Nate Tichenor's farewell sentence came back to her. She patted her father's cheek. "You're mighty sweet," she said.

Nathan Tichenor had come back to Eden Valley. He arrived in a glittering limousine, driven by a liveried chauffeur, beside whom sat a dignified middle-aged individual any Forlorn Valleyite would have accepted as a banker or railroad president but who was in reality Nathan Tichenor's English valet.

Arrived in the grass-grown farmyard of the deserted Bar H headquarters, Tichenor alighted.

"Well, lads, this is where I was born and raised," Nate Tichenor spoke finally.

The house reeked of that indescribable odor inseparable from closed and deserted houses, but a cursory inventory satisfied Tichenor that the contents had not been molested.

"Bring in the meats and groceries I purchased in Gold Run, Darby," he ordered the chauffeur. "There should be firewood in the woodshed. Start a fire in that fireplace. Joseph (the valet), get busy and organize our housekeeping, while I take a run up the valley to call on a neighbor."

When Nate returned from his visit up the valley, Joseph had the house swept and aired, beds made, and a luncheon in preparation. Tichenor was prowling around the venerable home of his ancestors, reviving old memories, when upon his ears impinged the steady, insistent tooting of an automobile siren. "Somebody up on the valley road wants something," he decided.

Tichenor glanced out the window and saw an automobile with two persons in it halted on the main road just outside the entrance to the Bar H headquarters.

"They must want me," he decided. "Now, how do they know I'm here?" He pondered. "Ah, yes. Smoke is rising from my chimney. Kershaws, I wonder? Must be the Kershaws or they'd drive in."

He took a heavy pistol from his bag, fitted it into a shoulder holster, put on his coat to conceal the weapon, went to the garage, backed his car out and whirled away up the ranch road to the gate, where he alighted and lifted his hat to Lorry Kershaw.

"I'm Lorraine Kershaw, Mr. Tichenor, and I am in trouble. My father has just died."

"Where?"

"Here, beside me—against my shoulder. He's so heavy and limp—I can't handle him—can't manage to drive."

Nate Tichenor opened the gate, came around to the side of her car warily, for he suspected a trap, stepped up in the running board and looked into Ranceford Kershaw's face, over which the sickly pallor of death was already spreading. He reached for the old man's pulse.

"Yes, he's dead, Miss Kershaw," he announced. "What do you want to do? Take him back into Valley Center or home?"

"Home," she replied brokenly. He stepped into the tonneau, lifted the dead man back over the seat and laid him gently down on the tonneau seat. "Drive slowly and I'll follow in my car," he said.

He alighted and stood beside her. "I'm very sorry," he said. "I regret that he has passed away before I had an opportunity to talk with him. I was up at your ranch-house this morning, but there was nobody home."

"You—you called—on us! Why?"

"To tell you and your father I was coming back to Eden Valley—to stay—and to suggest that we become neighbors—at last. I'm tired being an enemy. It's a job I never relished."

"Is that why you didn't demand additional security when father renewed his note to you, even though you knew the value of the cattle originally mortgaged had shrunk more than half?"

He nodded.

"I wish—I wish—we'd known. He thought—when he saw the smoke coming from your chimney—he thought—"

"He thought I'd turned up at last to smash him! Poor man! I've been dilatory. But is that any reason why we shouldn't shake hands, Miss Lorraine?"

She took his proffered hand in both of hers and now she was no longer brave. "Oh, Nate Tichenor," she sobbed. "I'm alone—all alone—alone!"

"No, you're not," he reminded her. "But have your little crying spell all out, just the same."

He stepped upon the running board, put his arm around her shoulder and drew her head over to him. "Weep on the breast of a friend," he urged. "Probably it's a privilege you've never enjoyed before."

While she sobbed against him he cautiously unbuckled the shoulder holster with the pistol in it, slipped it down under the tail of his coat and tossed it across the road into the grass.

CHAPTER IV

While Fate was busy staging a long-drawn tragedy in Eden Valley, Forlorn Valley had not been overlooked by the land-hungry. By 1880 practically every acre had been homesteaded; the district developed into a dry farming section and later into "mixed" farming.

Gold Run was the county seat, and in the heart of Forlorn Valley a settlement known as Valley Center had gradually developed into a village of about five hundred inhabitants. The entire valley was stagnant and drab until a large hydroelectric company erected its steel pyramids across the valley. Thereupon an enterprising farmer had a deep well drilled on his ranch and developed a surprising flow of water which rose almost to the surface; with a cheap centrifugal pump driven by a ten-horse power electric motor he was enabled to irrigate his quarter-section farm, seemingly without appreciable effect on the water level.

Almost at once Forlorn Valley was the victim of a boom. Gradually the brown lands became checkerboarded with vivid green patches, as the planting of alfalfa developed. Orchards were planted; the raising of hogs and cattle for beef and dairying increased; an adventurer from nowhere appeared and laid out a subdivision of the "thriving city" of Valley Center.

A former Middle West bank clerk, Silas Babson, who had inherited an Iowa farm from his parents and sold it for seventy-five thousand dollars, came to Valley Center and started a state bank. The Bank of Valley Center was successful from the start.

Babson was a son of the soil; thrifty, shrewd, rapacious, competent. From banking he reached out and interested himself in such local enterprises as creameries, a lumber yard, the largest local garage with the agency for a popular cheap automobile and pumps; he sold insurance of all kinds.

Only once had Babson lost his perspective on values and that was during the World war, and for this it would seem he was not to be blamed, since all his fellow countrymen lost theirs simultaneously. The rapid advance in the price of farm commodities had brought the usual boom of prosperity to Forlorn Valley. The bank, sharing in the general and unusual prosperity, presently had a glut of money on deposit and, since banks exist by loaning the funds deposited with them, Babson, with so much money on hand, and faced with the problem of making that money pay dividends, let down his guard, so to speak, and loaned money on farm mortgages.

The post-war deflation period arrived, and the values of farms and farm products dropped almost overnight below the pre-war marks. As he contemplated the bank's unsecured notes and frozen assets in the shape of mortgages on farms for 80 per cent of their present value and that value an exceedingly doubtful one, Babson had a very clear vision of hard times in the immediate offing.

If he foreclosed his mortgages he would have the farms on his hands—likewise their taxes and the loss of interest.

For the succeeding four years Mr. Babson's commercial progress was tinged with caution. Then the pendulum commenced to swing the other way very slowly, and one day a brilliant thought leaped into his harassed brain.

He decided to transfer his financial burdens to the capable hands of the rightful receiver of all gold bricks, to wit, the government. From the joint land stock banks established by the government to aid the stricken farmers and stock raisers he would induce his debtors to borrow on mortgage, at 5 per cent, sufficient funds to pay off the existing mortgages at 8 per cent held by the Bank of Valley Center. In order to sweeten the deal Mr. Babson even considered waiving the accumulated and unpaid interest for a couple of years. All he wanted back was the principal of his foolish loans, for with that in his vaults he knew his bank would be quite safe.

Promptly he bulldozed a farmer into making application for such a loan, and with commendable celerity a government farm appraiser came up from San Francisco to inspect the proffered collateral. It required something less than thirty seconds for this individual to make his appraisal and decision.

"The government," he said, "will not consider loaning money on California farms which are listed as dry-farming lands."

"But these lands are irrigated," Mr. Babson reminded him.

"Yes, so I observe, but from deep wells. But as more and more wells are bored and the farming in this valley tends more and more toward intensive cropping, thus requiring more and more water for irrigation, the water levels will recede and the cost of pumping the water to the surface will increase proportionately with the lift until a point will be reached where the water will be tintured with red ink. Hence, such lands as these are listed as dry-farming lands and constitute a loan risk the government is unwilling to assume. It will loan only on lands that are surface irrigated and with an assured and continuous source of water supply."

"So I've loaned money on dry farms because I was jackass enough to consider them irrigated farms," Babson almost moaned.

He made a survey of the water situation and discovered to his horror that the water levels were indeed receding.

"Creeping, paralysis! That's what it is," he soliloquized. "And the Bank of Valley Center is the richest patient and will have to pay the heaviest bill for medical attention."

But the old ability to scheme his way out of a tight hole did not desert him. He reduced his situation to its lowest common divisor. If surface irrigation from a never-failing and ample source of water supply, could be brought to the lands of Forlorn Valley, then Forlorn Valley lands would be classed by the government as irrigated lands, whose value would immediately return to the old wartime figure. And the federal farm loan banks would then have no hesitancy in loaning up to 60 per cent of the appraised value.

Therefore, the thing to do was to secure surface irrigation for Forlorn Valley.

"Eden Valley creek," Babson cried aloud. "A dam in that gorge in the lower end of Eden Valley, kept perennially at a high level by the flood waters of Eden Valley creek and led through a tunnel or a canal cut through the low hills on the northern rim and down into Forlorn Valley, will do the trick."

The next problem was that of acquiring the water, but this Babson did not regard as a difficult one. He had but to acquire the dam site from young Nathan Tichenor, sole owner of the Bar H Land and Cattle company. The land which would be inundated by the lake which would be formed when the dam should be built was next to worthless; Babson decided the Bar H Land and Cattle company would be delighted to get rid of it at a price not exceeding ten dollars an acre, although as grazing land it was not worth that. There were hydro electric possibilities inherent in the enterprise that would be worth millions alone. He must approach this delicate matter cautiously.

Tichenor had been an absentee landlord ever since leasing the Bar H ranch to Rance Kershaw. That argued he would scarcely be interested in returning to Eden Valley again and engaging in the cattle business.

Rance Kershaw was a financial wreck and could not possibly continue his lease of the Bar H, and it would be several years, doubtless, before a new tenant could be found for it. Yes, Nate Tichenor would sell the Bar H at a fair price—exorbitant, considering the present status of the cattle industry—rather than hang on to a frozen asset and pay taxes on it.

Mr. Babson decided instantly to buy the Bar H, if he had to pawn his wife's piano to aid in raising the money for the enterprise. With the title to the ranch vested in him—no, a dummy, for Babson must not appear in the deal—it would be a simple matter to sell the dam and lake sites to the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district for a cash consideration that would leave him the remainder of the ranch without cost!

He considered the Kershaw ranch and decided he would not bother to acquire that, even if he had the money to buy it cheap. It was worth not a penny less than a million dollars, but the Savings Bank of San Francisco held a first mortgage on it, the mortgage was due, Rance Kershaw (Babson knew) could not meet it, Babson doubted if he could refund it in these trying times, and hence, it would be foreclosed. Well, he might pick it up for the amount of the mortgage at the sheriff's sale. He did not require the Kershaw ranch for the sake of its water rights, but in order to control the water it was an absolute necessity for him to acquire the Bar H. Once the water had flowed down through the Kershaw ranch the Kershaws had no further interest in it; but it had to be impounded on the Bar H before it escaped off into the bad lands to the east and was lost.

YESTERDAY'S GENERATION ASKS—

DEAR Mrs. Post: My eighteen-year-old daughter is very fond of tennis and cannot understand why I hold it is not seemly for her to ride off with three boys to play tennis. I tell her she should suggest asking another girl to go with them. She considers me hopelessly "old-fashioned" and I have endeavored with little success to show her what you have voiced in the past: that conventions, though regarded by the present generation as irksome, have most excellent reasons for their existence, and observance of them would prevent regrets. Will you please express an opinion of my view?

Answer: Although, according to the present point of view, there is not the slightest impropriety in going off now and then with three boys to play tennis, I agree that it would be a serious mistake should she make going about alone with boys a habit. This is because a girl, who is always with boys, and never goes about with other girls, puts herself in a very insecure position. Perhaps you might explain to her that after all the word "declassée" means a woman whom the wives, mothers and sisters of her men friends refuse to know.

Dear Mrs. Post: What should I teach my son, who is nine years old, to reply to an introduction? I want him to say "ma'am" but I am told this is incorrect.

Answer: To a man, "How do you do, sir"; to a woman "How do you do, Mrs. Jones." "Ma'am" has always been a colloquialism—except when replying to royalty. But why "sir" is used when speaking to a gentleman and why "ma'am" is said to ladies in only a few localities is just one of those things that seem to have little reason further than that usage has made it so.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you help me plan a very small wedding in church, because it has been a long time since we've had a wedding in our family? (1) Is it necessary for the bride and groom to have any attendants? (2) Is it permissible for the bride's mother to act as her matron of honor? (3) And may the bride's fifteen-year-old brother give her away?

Answer: (1) The groom must have a best man. All other attendants are optional. (2) Absolutely no, so far as walking down the aisle is concerned. But she could stand next to her and hold her bouquet. (3) Yes.

INVITATIONS

DEAR Mrs. Post: The other day we received this invitation: "Dear Mrs. Jones—Will you and Marie come in for tea on Monday, October 2 at 4:30? Mrs. Blank is staying with me and I have asked a few friends in to meet her." I know that ordinarily an invitation to tea written on a visiting card, or an engraved invitation, need not be answered. But what about this one?

Answer: This one is an especially polite invitation to tea in the form of a personal note. It should be answered with a note saying, "Marie and I will be delighted to take tea with you on Monday, and to meet Mrs. Blank."

My dear Mrs. Post: I am moving very soon, and a few days after I'm settled in my new apartment I would like to have a cocktail party. Could I tell my friends that I have moved to a new address and also invite them in the same invitation?

Answer: Of course!

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister received a wedding invitation for the ceremony and reception of a very dear friend of hers who lives out of town and whom sister has not seen for several years. She cannot go and instead of the usual third person acknowledgment to her friend's parents, would it not be better for her to write a personal note and explain why she cannot be at the wedding?

Answer: Of course to this, too.

My dear Mrs. Post: We have invited out of town friends to come stay with us for a week. I feel that they will drive in their car, which means that they will have their chauffeur in town, too. Are we supposed to pay for garage rent and also to find a place for their man to stay, because we have no additional sleeping rooms where we could accommodate him?

Answer: No. Their car and their chauffeur have several responsibilities. If you have several servants and it is convenient to you to invite him to take his meals in your kitchen, he may perhaps accept this invitation. Or he may even then prefer to eat at a restaurant of his own choosing. At all events, the responsibility to lodge and board him would be yours only if you lived in a big house far out in the country.

Old Theory Disproved

by German Scientists

We have fifteen senses, not five, according to German men of science who are determined to upset old-fashioned theories, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

Among them are the sense of temperature, for instance, which is not merely the old-fashioned sense of touch but an entirely different matter. If the sense of temperature is lost a man is able to touch fiery coals without pain. Some parts of the body have an apparently strong sense of temperature, as, for instance, the tongue and the eyelid, which are especially sensitive to heat.

The "muscle sense" is a new discovery of Professor Frey. It is closely related to the sense of balance. On board ship, for instance, the muscle sense tells you what movement you must make to counteract the rolling of the ship.

DRESSY DESIGN IN
FROCK FOR HOUSE
OR STREET WEAR

PATTERN 9937

Looking lovely around the house is an art worth cultivating. It isn't a luxury to have good-looking morning frocks. It's just a matter of choosing the right designs. The frock in the illustration is so comfortably trim that it is nice to do your housework in, and yet, it has so many delightful fashion details that you can actually use the same pattern to make an afternoon or street dress. For mornings make it of one of the checked, striped or figured new cottons. For afternoons, use sheer cotton or silk.

Pattern 9937 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards 36-inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth St., New York.

NO TROUBLE

"Henry," said Mrs. Glipping in one of her tearful moods, "if I were to die, would you mourn for me?"

"Certainly I would, my dear," replied Mr. Glipping, as he scanned the financial page.

"And would you visit my—boo-hoo—grave sometimes?"

"Of course. Why do you ask such a foolish question? You know the cemetery is on the way to the golf links."—News (Dallas).

Meaning of Name "Caesar"

Although the most widely accepted meaning of the name "Caesar" is "hairy," this name also is said to have as its root the word caedo (to cut), and also caesius (super-naturally blue), according to the Chicago Tribune. It also has been stated that the Moorish word for elephant was its origin. It was, however, borne by the emperors of Rome as a title, when their empires were far flung and their power tremendous. The word kaiser is believed to have derived from this title, in the days when German rulers took their authority from Rome. There is argument that czar, formerly spelled tsar, evolved from the same source.

Potato Not Irish

Ireland is not the home of the Irish potato. Its original home was western South America where it was found and taken to Europe by explorers who were in search of gold. The potato did not win immediate favor in Europe. War, famine and king's decrees first were necessary before it gained popularity. In Scotland, it was considered for many years the forbidden fruit that got Adam and Eve into everlasting disgrace.

Useful Bird

The brown creeper is one of the most industrious and most painstaking birds known when it comes to its feeding habits. This bird, slightly smaller than an English sparrow, feeds usually on larvae found in the bark of trees. When feeding, it starts at the bottom of a tree and spirals its way upward, usually making an extremely good job of clearing all the larvae found on the bark.

Pearls

Pearls of culture generally possess a finer structure than those of accidental growth. This is due to the smaller amount of organic matter which is consumed and secreted by the oysters, which live in well cleaned cages. "Natural" pearls contain on an average 2 per cent of water, but those of "culture" contain less than this, an important factor after the pearl has dried out.

Ohio's Southern Boundary

Ohio's southern boundary is not the middle of the river, as one might naturally suppose, but it is the low water mark on this side of the stream. While chief justice of the United States, John Marshall handed down a decision saying that the southern territory retains the river within its own domain.

Cardinal Is Good Singer

The cardinal is no mean songster for it sings in the winter as well as the summer. They are year around residents in many parts of the country. They like to be on good terms with human beings whenever sufficient cover, suitable nesting places and food are available.

Highest Mountain

Measuring from the center of the earth, instead of from sea level, the highest mountain of the globe is not Mt. Everest, but Mt. Chimborazo, in the Andes, according to calculations made by a German scientist, says Literary Digest. On this scale Chimborazo's peak is 3,966.99 miles from the center of the earth; Everest's only 3,965.66. Four other peaks, Hauscaran (Peru), Coto-paxi (Ecuador), Kenia (East Africa) and Kilimanjaro (Africa) are also "higher" above the earth's center than Everest. The difference in the measurement is due to the bulge of the earth at the equator.

Price of a Wife

It is said that among the Ainus the price of a wife is a bear ham. The Kafir figure varies from four to eight oxen, according to the competition for the particular bride. A score of cartridges buys a wife in Uganda, and the Australian black gives the weight of his better half in butter, while the Tartars in Turkestan get as many wives as they want at the rate of a box of matches each.

Money

Money is a circulating medium of exchange and includes coins, bank notes, certificates, or any other article of value that can be readily put into circulation. Like distance, weight, and volume, money must have a gauge of known dimension to determine its proportions, and gold is the gauge by which money values are measured in every civilized country in the world.

Game Birds and Animals

Game birds and animals must depend on a suitable environment for their continued existence. This environment must include, among other things, food and cover for a seasons of the year, nesting grounds unspoiled by burning or other destructive farm practices and small ungrazed areas that will provide a means of escape from natural enemies.

Danes, Swedes, as Farmers

The Danes and the Swedes are excellent agriculturists. Sweden and Denmark are highly developed agricultural countries, and these people have been agriculturally inclined for centuries. In addition, they are used to a rigorous climate, which makes them vigorous, and they are extremely thrifty and industrious.

Horse-Fighting Sport

In Davao, a province of Mindanao, one of the Philippine Islands, the ancient sport of horse-fighting—in which fiery stallions are pitted against each other for the possession of a mare—is still staged, but more or less surreptitiously, by the Mohammedan princes.

Mississippi River Widths

The Mississippi river at its extreme mouth is not very wide. The different openings through the Delta are called passes and none of them is more than two miles wide at any point, while most are much narrower.

Some Politeness

Politeness in Tibet requires you, when greeting a stranger, to grasp your right ear with your right hand, and then stick out your tongue as far as it will conveniently stretch.

Value of a Mill

The value of a mill is one-tenth of a cent. Mills are not coined, although they are listed in the United States currency, but are used in computing amounts.

Reverges

AMERICANA

BY

ELLSWORTH F. WHALEN

Governor "Sunny" Jim Rolph jr., has gone to his eternal reward. Californians mourn this man because he was humane and cheerful to his fellow men. As a man, the writer admired Governor Rolph; as a politician, the writer withholds his admiration. Nevertheless, if we have made our fellow men happier on this earth, we have done our part and nobly so. The truly great things in physical life do not house a state of mental uneasiness within our minds. When we smile and greet our neighbors in a Christian-like manner; when we extend charity to the poor; when we abolish class distinction within our different standards of living; when we look upon money as a medium of exchange and not as a worshipful god; when we are unafraid to criticize ourselves; when and after all the mentioned things have been accomplished, we will have improved our American citizenship and practiced true Christian ethics. Its better to enjoy life than money, perhaps that is why God gave us life.

Can the Townsend old age pension plan succeed? Thousands of old people would like to know. Having thoroughly studied the Townsend plan, the writer is absolutely opposed to its adoption by the American people in its present form. This column is short. I cannot go into detail on my opposition to the Townsend plan within this column, but if my readers request it, I will be glad to write a special article on the Townsend plan showing why I oppose it in its present form. Every American citizen 60 years of age or over, should be independent and not a burden on the taxpayer. There is a way to use the Townsend plan with certain restrictions.

For each ten thousand people in the United States there is one Department of Commerce licensed airplane pilot. Such news is disgusting, especially in the richest nation in the world. During the financial depression (which is still going on) over 5000 pilots lost their licenses and they are losing them now at the rate of 100 per month. Lindbergh's famous New York-to-Paris flight in May of 1927 built a rich aeronautical America. The Big Bad Wolf got hungry in 1932 and has been eating up the American aeronautical industry ever since then.

Upon reaching the seaport of Madras after a run up the coast from Ceylon and past the settlement of Pondicherry, Indian jugglers board your ship to display their magical skill for financial remuneration. For $10.00 you can witness the following trick. You are asked to sit down on the open deck of your ship. Two natives place a mangostone and a handful of dirt under a cotton sheet. After gibbering a little, they remove the cotton sheet disclosing a small green sprout about 7 inches in height. Do you want "big mango?" the juggler asks; "big mango?" If you reply in the affirmative, the sprout is very carefully recovered followed by low-toned incantations. While the incantations continue, one of the jugglers slowly raises the center of the cotton sheet higher and higher. Finally upon removing the sheet, you behold a mango-bush over 5 feet high and bearing fruit which the juggler picks and gives you to eat. No mango-bushes really grow that fast or is it our imagination? I wonder.

Thousands of high school graduates will be joined by thousands of others looking for work after June 14, 1934. This summer's new crop of high school graduates must not expect to find work immediately or in the very near future. Their greatest job will not be trying to find work but trying to keep up courage to lead a decent life. If we, American citizens, can curb crime in our Nation by education and not force, we will have fulfilled our obligation to society and especially to America's young men and women. The huge increase of young people adopting a life of crime within our Nation is creating a barrier in the path of democratic government that few of us realize. Why not study from the Bible in public schools? Is it disgraceful?
